The highly renowned FMPIA seminar is now available online - for organisations wishing to benefit from the cost saving and financial efficiencies that this exceptional session brings.

Ideal for the current period of uncertainty, this option will enable participants to still access learning these critical financial skills in just two days. Financial challenges for companies need people with financial skills – not just in accounting but right across the operation. When it comes down to it – everything is about the money. Everyone, in all operational roles are financially responsible and as such must be financially skilled. FMPIA is the ideal solution.

Video conference version of the course – still conducted personally by Rob

- The engaging and fully interactive session still includes all of the benefits his course is famous for
- Each course is conducted personally by Rob and limited to 2-6 participants
- This limit of 6 participants ensures a higher level of individual tutoring and assistance
- Course duration – 14hrs over two days in 45minute segments. Start and finish times fitted to suit the group
- The content is identical to the face to face seminar – with the learning outcomes every bit as high
- The renowned comprehensive 200page workbook/resource manual is issued prior to the course
- A software suite of 18 spreadsheets are issued after the course.
- Participants can attend either individually from home, at work, in groups or in remote, isolated situations
- No special technology or apps required – a laptop, tablet, computer or larger smart phone is all that is needed
- AND it still includes all the ever-popular personal finance techniques

Same course – same duration – same presenter – same great experience – just online in a small group

How it happens:

- The normal workbooks are sent out prior, the normal suite of software spread sheets are emailed after
- We use Zoom where possible as it is highly stable for remote and various devices. Skype and GoToMeeting are also fine.
- All participants can hear, share and talk at any time – so questions and interaction is live and in real time
- Video is used when and if needed for group discussion – then audio whilst Rob is lecturing, writing and drawing
- Using screen sharing, Rob presents slides & spreadsheets & draws on the screen in exactly the same way as in class.
- Each participant can ask questions, comment and show their work in the same way as if in the room
- Assessment and confirmation of learning is the same, via written exercises and verbal responses
- 14 hrs duration over two days: conducted in 45-minute segments with 15 min breaks – slightly longer over lunch
- This enables fresher, faster learning blocks - plus participants can attend to other work-related matters throughout the day
- Start and finish times tailored to suit the group – each course content tailored to suit the group

Online Conference Options

The technology is common, easy to use and secure

We can oblige most online conference technology – there are over 10, with Zoom, GoToMeeting and Skype being the most popular.

- Zoom is by far the most reliable, well known and has proven to be our preferred option due to it being very simple to set up and use. It's also very stable and easy to link to in all environments – even mobile 3G and 4G. It can accommodate different devices, in separate locations and is quick and easy to set up. Zoom requires no subscriptions at your end – no apps, downloads just a web browser or a phone.

- Generally, we find that Skype is popular with businesses as they often already have it set up. It tends to work well if the participants are in a group at work with one big screen and have a very good internet speed. But not so reliable when participants are all on separate devices at separate locations with different internet speeds. Skype is also being replaced with Microsoft Teams.

- GoToMeeting is very good, much more stable in various environments and internet speed and has more features than Skype. However, it does require, and small app download and we have found that it is not as widely used or rated as Zoom.

Skype system requirements

Most companies who wish to use Skype already have it installed on their system. In this case we simply liaise as to how many participants and in what environment they will attend, send a Skype invitation and get started.

GoToMeeting system requirements

GoToMeeting can be installed as an app on practically any device, can be used in any location even 4G and is somewhat tolerant of remote situations.

Zoom Meeting system requirements

please note: it is not essential or conditional to use Zoom. However, it has proven to be our preferred option due to it being very simple to set up and operate on any device anywhere. It also is compatible with our presentation software.
Listed below is the process :

- All attendees will require access to a desktop, laptop, tablet or large smart phone (for clear viewing of tables and spreadsheets), with audio functions. Webcam is preferred though not essential.
- Internet connection with reasonable internet speed. (although a tablet or phone can connect without internet)
- Free web browser access is all – instructions are sent prior to the course also.
- For companies that restrict installation of programs by personnel to avoid security breaches, Zoom is perfect as no downloads or app installation is required.

How to join a Meeting

- Once your course dates and times have been set, you'll receive your invite to join either via email or text.
- You will also receive a detailed instruction on how to join the meeting at the appointed time.
- The invite will contain a URL path to simply paste into your browser or a phone number to enable you to join the meeting.
- If this is your first-time using Zoom, we guide you through it by phone to get set up – takes 1 minute.
- Simply enter the code and password if requested, at or just prior to the start time.
- Allow access to your microphone and video camera when prompted.
- If you have any questions, please let us know on +61 8 62302611 or email admin@tecoa.com.au or rob.glenn@tecoa.com.au

We look forward to meeting you there
